Choose a lifestyle,
a lifelong adventure
in the orienteering

The orienteer gets a special map of the terrain. Triangle indicates the start, the double hoop is the finish. The checkpoints are marked by a circles between the start and the finish, which are also connected. The order of the point catch is obligatory, if a person misses a point, they are disqualified from the tournament. You have to navigate between the points with just a map, there's no other help in the field. You can get out of the finish zone to the start zone by appointed beat. The runners are going to only get their map at the moment of the start. Everyone has a compass, which is necessary for correct map rotation and directions. Runners on the same track depart every 2-3 minutes to complete the track individually. The person who take the points in the shortest time wins.
